Johnson Can Be Tough on Critics

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sounds very tolerant towards his critics, when he's not criticizing them. He can be both tolerant and critical not only in the same week but in the same speech.

This has been going on for years because the critics have irritated him for years.

Just last week he was saying a president "will find people who differ with him, who disagree with him. We all understand that. We accept that."

But also last week he challenged the critics of his Vietnam policy to stop being "nervous Nellies," saying: "There will be nervous Nellies and some who become frustrated and bothered and break ranks under the strain and turn on their own leaders, their own country and their own fighting men."

It was one of his sharpest attacks on those who don't like the Vietnamese war and so say. Back in 1964, in office less than three months, Johnson combined criticism and tolerance in one speech. This was on Feb. 11 1964.

"Regardless of what you hear," he said, "and regardless of what some of the bellyachers say, we are a much beloved people throughout the world." He said, "You will hear alarmists and people who like to jump on their government, people who like to criticize...join with some of our opponents and will be almost as much of a problem as some of our other enemies."

Then he became suddenly tolerant: "We have differences. Even in our own country we do not see everything alike. We must make allowances for the other fellow."

Three days later, speaking about U.S. problems at home and abroad, he managed the same kind of combination: "Freedom prospers through fair discussion of honest differences. Both at home and abroad we welcome such discussion. But neither at home nor abroad is there any need for twisted arguments that would damage the good name of our country."

"Those who distort the truth to alarm the people either at home or abroad, about our capacity or our purposes will not fulfill their ambitions."

Two weeks ago one Washington reporter wrote that Johnson had accepted his "critics as a way of presidential life and muffled some of his outbursts. The anger that used to explode when Sen. J. W. Fulbright took the Senate floor with attacks on foreign policy has dissolved into a kind of sadness."

The mind-reading was a little premature. That same week in a speech at Princeton Johnson took a crack at Fulbright who had complained American foreign policy displayed an "arrogance of power."

Without mentioning Fulbright by name, Johnson said the exercise of power in this century meant for the United States "not arrogance but agony."

The next night at a Democratic dinner Johnson took another poke at Fulbright, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, who was sitting a few seats away.

"For goodness sakes, Rose, please put your teeth in. I can't understand a word you are saying."

This quote is so pertinent to one of the basic functions of teeth — our speech — I couldn't resist it. Just imagine Fidel Castro on his balcony, a battery of microphones before him, and below, 300,000 wildly cheering Cubans waiting for him to speak. But alas, he remembered to put on his beard but forgot his teeth!

If, as social philosopher, Marshall McLuhan says about communication, "... the medium is the message," then teeth are the message. Teeth are an extension of ourselves; teeth portray our thoughts and feelings.

Artificial teeth may temporarily alter this portrayal. Dentures often change tone quality and enunciation. But these changes are transitory and last only as long as it takes the lips, cheeks and tongue to get acquainted with unfamiliar surfaces, restricted areas, and the mouthful of teeth.

Don't wait till you "get used to them." As soon as you get home from the dentist with your new teeth, begin practicing: Read out loud. Poetry is especially helpful because it's somewhat more difficult to enunciate and yet has some rhythm that makes reading more a game than a chore.

Continuing difficulty with certain sounds, particularly those which require bringing lips together, such as "b" and "m" and "p" and "w"; or those which require placing lower lip under upper front teeth, such as "r" and "v"; or whistling caused by "s" and "th" sounds; may be due to faulty arrangement of teeth, or overextension of pink base material. Your dentist can easily correct this.

If your teeth click when you speak, it may be because they come together before you expect them to. The teeth may be too long, or as we say, "the bite is open." This can usually be corrected by grinding teeth to adjust the "bite." Porcelain teeth make louder and sharper noises than plastic ones.

Nothing a Wind Wouldn't Cure

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — There's nothing wrong with Puffin if a westerly wind couldn't cure.

That was the word Wednesday from the Coast Guard cutter Conifer concerning the 15-foot rowboat in which two English journalists set out last Saturday to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

The Puffin was spotted by the Conifer about 10 1/2 miles off Cape Charles on Virginia's east shore, its occupants in good condition.

David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, were not ready to give up, said Lt. T.D. Keith the cutter's executive officer. He said their only needs were a dry chart and favorable winds.

When they set out from Virginia Beach, the two rowers had hoped to reach St. Ives, England, in less than 55 days. But they have been hampered by southeast winds.

Dog Poisoner

Editor The Star: I would like for you to publish my letter for I want everyone to know how lonely we two old people are since our little Boston bulldog was poisoned last Thursday afternoon.

He was a very smart little fellow and never bothered any one. He loved both white and colored people. And let me say this: We are sure it wasn't a colored person that did it. The same afternoon two small boys' dogs were poisoned also. And one I don't know who it belonged to; there were four in all.

We bought Bimbo from Mrs. Paul Cobb before she passed away. And we loved him very much and thought all our neighbors liked him. All the dogs got their poison right here in McCaskill. No one knows how we miss Bimbo, and we hope and pray God will forgive whoever did it.

The Greatest Threat,

Do Gooders or Gamblers?

Editor The Star: In a sense, inflation is a moral as well as an economic issue.

Inflation gets its impetus from human selfishness and greed. Deficit spending is in reality the transfer to future generations of the tax load for present spending. The depth of our national moral decay is portrayed by two common excuses, "If we don't spend it, someone else will" and "Why worry about the national debt, we owe it to ourselves."

Is it any wonder that the Job Corps spends 10 to 15 times as much per student as the average public school; that the War on Poverty is degenerating into a gigantic boondoggle; that 8 to 10 million people find welfare a more attractive way to live than working; that the airlines to Washington are jammed with local business men and civic leaders pleading for federal dams, swimming pools, and airports? Materialism holds sway in America today. The greatest threat to the future of our nation — to our freedom — is not foreign military aggression or internal communistic subversion but the growing dependence of the people on a paternalistic government. A nation is no stronger than its people and the best measure of their strength is how they accept responsibility. There will never be a great society unless the materialism of the welfare state is replaced by individual initiative and responsibility.

All freedom loving citizens should memorize the following little prayer and do something: Prayer: "God grant me the serenity to accept things I cannot change, courage to change things I can, wisdom to know the difference."

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' second "National Drivers Test" Tuesday night was as much an hour of instruction as it was a quiz, and the lessons covered passengers, conduct and emergency repairs as well as driving techniques.

Probably few women drivers knew before the program that the best way to cool off a motor overheated by stop-and-go driving is to shift into neutral and race the motor. We do now.

What to do when you are caught by a red light on a pedestrians' crosswalk or intersection? Jump the light? Back up? Stand still and make the pedestrians walk around you? You stand still and accept their glares.

If your car gets a flat tire on an expressway where you cannot pull off to the side, do you halt in the right-hand lane to make repairs or await help, or do you keep riding on that flat until you can get off the road? You keep traveling since a chewed-up tire is not as serious as a deadly pileup of speeding cars.

These were some of the 22 questions and answers posed during the hour. The viewer scored his own answers, and CBS pretested a national sample of licensed drivers so we could tell how we fared. The average national sample score was 51 — one point over a rating of "poor."

Practice and experience in turning out this special type of program made this second drivers' quiz much easier to follow. The first show was overloaded with detailed and not very interesting statistical reports on scores made by sample audiences.

With one exception, the demonstrations of poor driving habits on which questions were pegged were clear and concise. Drawings, diagrams and some pretty horrifying filmed demonstrations of bad driving ending in smashups were used.

Throughout the program, use of safety belts was emphasized. Two nonscoring "opinion questions" were inserted. One asked whether drivers over 65 should be given physical checkups and have their driving skills retested each time their license was up for renewal. Sixty-two per cent of the national sample thought they should be.

The second asked whether built-in safety features should be standard equipment. Seventy-four per cent of the sample said they should be standard equipment in cars at no extra cost, even at the sacrifice of style.

It was a well-organized interesting program. Hopefully it will persuade some of us to drive more wisely over the approaching Memorial Day weekend.

Beauty Contest Is Postponed

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — To seek better television time and to avoid competition with summer tourists, the International Beauty Congress this year has been postponed until 1967.

Congress officials made the announcement Wednesday, after the city council, which provides much of the money for the contest, agreed to amend its contract. The precise date depends upon negotiations for television coverage, the officials said.

The event originated as the Miss Universe Pageant in 1952 and in 1960 became the International Beauty Congress.

HELEN HELP US!

Nixes Skinny Minnies

Dear Helen: Being a man, I make a plea to you women. Please, please don't follow the lead of fashion models and slim down to animated sticks.

I don't want to date a girl that looks like a boy when she's going the other way (or my way either). I want her to be a little hippy, and she should keep her knees stiff so she can walk with a wiggle. A woman has no lovelier asset than a swinging walk. And nice curves.

I'm all for bulging if it's a healthy bulge and looks like it "belongs." Of course it takes exercise to keep the bulge from getting bulbous. — Ray

Dear Ray: Right! Skinny Minnies are for fashion magazines, not men — say the men. But bulge without bulk means exercise. That's why so many gals taking to the paths on bicycles these days. — H.

Dear Helen: We have a large home and no outside help. In addition to ordinary chores, our 13-year-old daughter cleans the bathrooms each day — two full size baths and a half-bath, changes towels, mops, deodorizes, etc. Our 12-year-old boy mows the lawn, waters and keeps the outside neat. (Our other two are still very small.) We figure they each spend a half-hour a day on their jobs and for this we pay them $2.50 a week to spend as they please, no questions asked.

Recently we learned they have opened bank accounts and are saving for college. This without our urging.

Are our children being brought up right as respects money?

I have read you shouldn't pay children for family chores. Then I've read other places where $2.50 a week isn't enough allowance. — E. J. M.

Dear E: Stop reading and follow your mother instincts: You are doing a bang-up job of raising two fine youngsters, and I am sure this applies to the two small ones also. — H.

Dear Helen: An answer to "Shorty" who seems miserable because he is five feet four inches, and wants to know what will make him grow. Nothing — if he's born to be short, but his attitude can make him stand tall.

My husband is also five feet four and though at one time it might have bothered him, it certainly hasn't hindered his overall development. He was very active in high school and college — student government, sports, social life, band. He has always been extremely popular, and no one gave his lack of height a second thought. After all, his feet do reach the ground.

Granted our friends used to call us the Lilliputian Lovers, but it was all in good fun. (I'm five feet one inch.) Anyway, I just wanted to tell Shorty that no one is as concerned as he is. There are so very many ways to grow! — Lilliput — Two.

The Backyard Fence

"Criminal Attacks on Women and What to Do About Them". That was our discussion group's topic on a recent evening.

Driving home near midnight on a dark and grimy street, saw headlights blinking behind me. The driver pulled along side and motioned. I speeded up. He speeded up — all the while making what to me were "wild and depraved" signals. He shot out in front of me, beckoning, and even then he caught up with me. Finally, after eight blocks, I rolled down my window a notch, and this is why I'm writing my public apology to an unknown benefactor.

"Lady," he shouted, disgusted. "Your tail light's out!" — H.

Victory Moves Orioles Into 2nd Place Tie

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Hank Bauer, in the market for another pitcher, placed his classified ad in the Baltimore Orioles' dugout when he posted the line-up.

And Sam Bowens, perhaps sensing he was in the showcase, didn't waste his chance to impress Bauer's potential customer, the Chicago White Sox. He stroked four hits and drove in four runs in a one-man show in Baltimore's 7-1 victory Thursday.

It was hardly endearing to the White Sox, but certainly impressive.

The Orioles, hoping to entice an extra pitcher away from Chicago, are reportedly dangling Bowens as the bait. In two games against the White Sox he rapped six hits in nine trips.

Bowens delivered a two-run single in the fourth and then drove in two more with a double in the seventh. He had two other singles and also stole a base.

It could be the White Sox will make the deal for him just to keep him from hitting against them.

The victory moved the Orioles into a second-place tie with Detroit which suffered through a nightmarish ninth inning and lost 8-4 to American League leading Cleveland. In the only other AL game, Boston downed Minnesota 7-2.

In the National League, Pittsburgh shaded Houston 3-2. St. Louis edged Chicago 3-2 and San Francisco blanked Philadelphia 1-0 in 14 innings.

The Tigers were tied at 3-3 going into the ninth inning against Cleveland. But a walk, fielder's choice, a wild pitch and another walk loaded the bases with none out.

Chuck Hinton singled for two runs. Then with two out and the bases still loaded after Vic Davalillo's single, Hank Aguirre uncorked a wild throw on Fred Whitfield's dribbler and three more Cleveland runs crossed the plate. That gave the Indians five runs on just two hits.

Jim Northrup's two-run homer had tied the game for the Tigers in the eighth.

Earl Wilson won his fifth game in the last decisions, striking out nine Twins.

Rico Petrocelli's eighth home run gave Wilson a quick lead in the first inning and the Red Sox routed Jim (Mudcat) Grant with four runs in the second.

Jimmie Hall's home run and three singles deprived Wilson of his shutout in the ninth.

Would Eliminate Heroic War Legends

MOSCOW (AP) — A general in charge of guarding Communist party ideology in the Soviet armed forces says Soviet literature should show "the greatness of our time" instead of questioning heroic legends of World War II.

Gen. Alexei A. Yepishev, head of the central political department of the Soviet army and navy, said in a speech reported Wednesday, that writers should also appreciate Joseph V. Stalin's reasons for sending people to their death or to concentration camps.

"What we need is the truth" in writing about World War II, he said. "The truth, as is known is that the Soviet people, under the leadership of our party, displaying high courage and organization," held the Germans, checked the blitzkrieg and broke the invader.

Marichal Wins 9th in Row in 14 Innings

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

About the only thing Juan Marichal hasn't done yet this season is pitch two shutouts in one day.

But he's working up to it.

The unbeaten San Francisco right-hander was on his way there Thursday, pitching 14 innings before recording his ninth victory and fourth shutout in the Giants' 1-0 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

"This was my toughest game of the year," Marichal admitted. "I was tired."

But he added:
"I think I could have gone a few more innings."

It probably wouldn't have made much difference to the Phillies. Marichal has been virtually untouchable this season and surrendered only six hits against the Phillies while striking out 10 and walking only one.

Only two other games were played in the National League, Pittsburgh edging Houston 3-2 and St. Louis defeating the Chicago Cubs 3-2.

In the American League, Baltimore walloped the Chicago White Sox 7-1, Cleveland belted Detroit 8-4 and Boston downed Minnesota 7-2.

Marichal was locked in a brilliant duel with Jim Bunning until the 11th inning when the Phillies starter left for a pinch hitter after allowing only four hits.

Then, in the 14th, Jim Davenport lined one to right center off reliever Darold Knowles. Johnny Callison tried for a backhand, shepherding catch but the ball got by him for a triple.

Hal Lanier drew a walk — and it was Marichal's turn to bat.

"I didn't want Herman (Manager Herman Franks) to let me hit and then be sorry for it," said Marichal. "So I went to him and told him. I've been hitting well but I'm not a good hitter."

Franks tapped Jesus Alou to pinch hit and Knowles walked him intentionally. Pinch hitter Bob Barton then lifted a fly to center field. Davenport raced home with the game's only run and Marichal had a 9-0 record.

Manny Mota's third inning homer proved decisive for the Pirates. The victory went to Steve Blass but he needed Pete Mikkelsen's relief help in the eighth inning after Jim Gentile tripped.

Mikkelsen was tagged for a run-scoring double by Lee Maye but eventually got out of a bases-loaded jam by getting Felix Mantilla to hit into a double play.

Cubs' starter Dick Ellsworth took a six-hitter and a 2-0 lead provided by Byron Browne's homer into the ninth inning but the Cardinals came out on top.

Orlando Ceneda singled in the trying run, after run error Ron Santo had let in the first, and Tim Lincecum capped the uprising with a bases-loaded single.

Sloppy Boatmen, Beware

By WM. TAYLOR McKEOWN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(N.E.A.)—The Coast Guard thinks it has the sloppy boatman's number.

It's painted on the front of his boat.

"We simply look for improper registration numbers on the hull," says Capt. D. W. Sinclair, chief of recreational boating safety on federal waterways. "We feel a person indifferent to the numbering requirements is likely to be indifferent to safety equipment requirements, too. So we stop him and take a look."

Last year, Coast Guard boarding teams found more than half of the boats they stopped had something wrong—maybe an empty fire extinguisher or not enough life preservers, in addition to those improperly numbered.

First, for that registration number that goes on each side of the bow, come a couple letters that indicate the state. Then a space or a dash, and too often is left out. Next a set of numbers another space or dash and some more letters. (CT 2608-B) would be right for a boat registered in Connecticut. (CT 2608-B) would invite a Coast Guard stop.

All letters and numbers have to be at least 4 inches high and of a color that is easy to read.

Since the Guard has to do everything afloat from track arctic icebergs to patrol Asian jungle shores, there aren't too many Guardsmen left to spot-check pleasure craft.

And improper or missing safety equipment can mean a warning or a stiff fine.

So the boatman who doesn't display his registration correctly makes a high visibility target for inspection teams. If he hasn't bothered to mount his numbers so the Guard can read them, his number may be up.

Potts Fires 8 Under Par to Lead Tourney

By BILL LITTLE

Associated Press Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Johnny Pott sees nothing wrong with being on top.

The pro from Gulf Hills, Miss., fired an eight-under-par 64 to grab a four-stroke lead in the Oklahoma City Open at Quail Creek Golf and Country Club Thursday.

Only once before this year has a golfer led a tourney throughout.

"It never hurts to be ahead," Pott said. "There's no psychological disadvantage or anything like that. Most of us have been playing for a long time, and I don't get too excited anymore. There is nothing wrong with leading a tournament as far as I can see."

Franks tapped Jesus Alou to pinch hit and Knowles walked him intentionally. Pinch hitter Bob Barton then lifted a fly to center field. Davenport raced home with the game's only run and Marichal had a 9-0 record.

Manny Mota's third inning homer proved decisive for the Pirates. The victory went to Steve Blass but he needed Pete Mikkelsen's relief help in the eighth inning after Jim Gentile tripped.

Mikkelsen was tagged for a run-scoring double by Lee Maye but eventually got out of a bases-loaded jam by getting Felix Mantilla to hit into a double play.

Cubs' starter Dick Ellsworth took a six-hitter and a 2-0 lead provided by Byron Browne's homer into the ninth inning but the Cardinals came out on top.

Smithsonian Capital Night Spot

By KELLY SMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution — by popular concept a staid, crusty old museum — is the capital's newest nightspot.

By day, some 10 million visitors a year wander the hallways of relics and artifacts. By night, the corridors tremble to beats of the Jerk, Watutsi, and candlelight dinners and receptions.

"It's fantastic," says Meredith Johnson, whose duties as acting director of museum services now include a protocol. "We're really swinging over here."

The man responsible is Dr. Sidney Dillon Ripley, the tall, bald scholar who used to do shape fantastic things at Yale's Museum of Natural History. He once enlivened an exhibition of Egyptian treasures by hiring a performer to do an Egyptian folk dance, which turned out to be a belly dance.

Since February 1964, Ripley has been the head man at the 118-year-old Smithsonian.

He's initiated receptions, teas, luncheons, dinners, concerts, music on the mall — and even a black-tie reception at the zoo.

Barely a day goes by without a social function somewhere in the Smithsonian realm. Usually, there are several.

It certainly draws the city's most familiar faces.

At the recent opera ball — one of the big social toasts to spring — there were some 20 ambassadors, half the Cabinet, a plan-load of New Yorkers, and much of the East Coast's wealth.

The ball was held in the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology at midnight.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth, on the social scene for half a century, was delighted with the frenzied dances. Bill Moyers, over from the White House, did an energetic Frug. Lydia Katzenbach, whose husband runs the Justice Department, and Mrs. Edward M. Kennedy, wife of the senator, were great with Watutsi.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara danced a fast two-step with Ethel Kennedy, then took her husband, Robert F. Kennedy, and Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr., former ambassador to the Soviet Union, aside for consultations under the escalator.

Mrs. Rudolph E. Carter, wife of a State Department official showed up wearing a peek-a-boo dress with a flesh-colored body stocking, the effect of which was spectacular.

She was told to go home and change, and did. But she came back, not to miss any of the fun.

As the last guests left the museum at 3 a.m., the building maintenance crews — some still wearing tuxedos — took over. By morning everything was back in order.

A few days later, Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, criticized use of the Smithsonian for the party.

"I was amazed and shocked that they had a $75 to $100 per ticket dance at the Smithsonian with the Rev. Moyers doing the Watutsi and Fring and one woman sent home to get dressed because she was half-naked," Gross said.

Moyers, on the other hand, said the Smithsonian was a "fantastic place."

Bus Strike Strands Sr. Citizens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When 37 Michigan senior citizens were stranded in San Francisco by Western Lines Greyhound strike complications, they responded by square dancing in their hotel's lobby.

"We've had a tornado in Illinois, sleet in the Rockies, a hotel fire in Los Angeles and now this," said tour director Betty Keller.

All members of the Pleasant Hours Club of Dearborn were on a 30-day chartered western tour when Amalgamated Transit Union pickets stopped their bus Thursday in San Francisco.

The bus was operated by the unstruck Eastern Greyhound Lines. San Francisco Transit Union local spokesmen said, "Any Greyhound bus that comes into our territory is going to be picketed." Some union members threatened to lay down in front of the bus.

The group planned to leave for Salt Lake City today — by train.

Thinks He Is Being Watched

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — J. Robert Jones, North Carolina's Grand Dragon of the United Klans of America, has the feeling someone's interested in his whereabouts most all the time.

During a news conference Thursday, Jones talked of the state's watchdog committee set up to watch the Klan.

"They follow me like little pocket dogs," Jones said. "I look up every once in a while and see them following me. I don't know if they're really watching me or not."

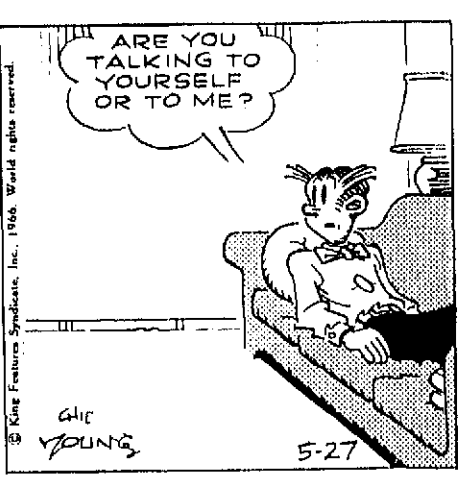

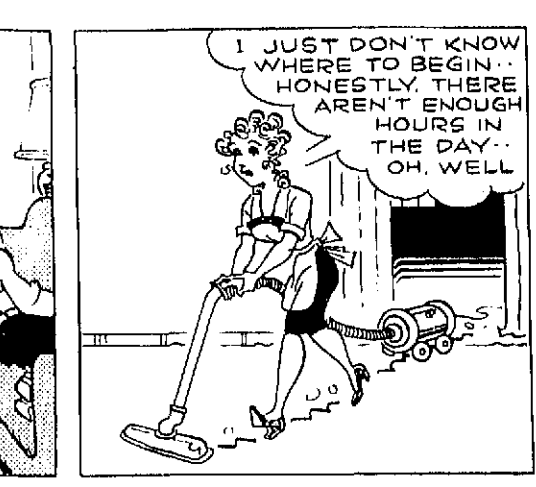

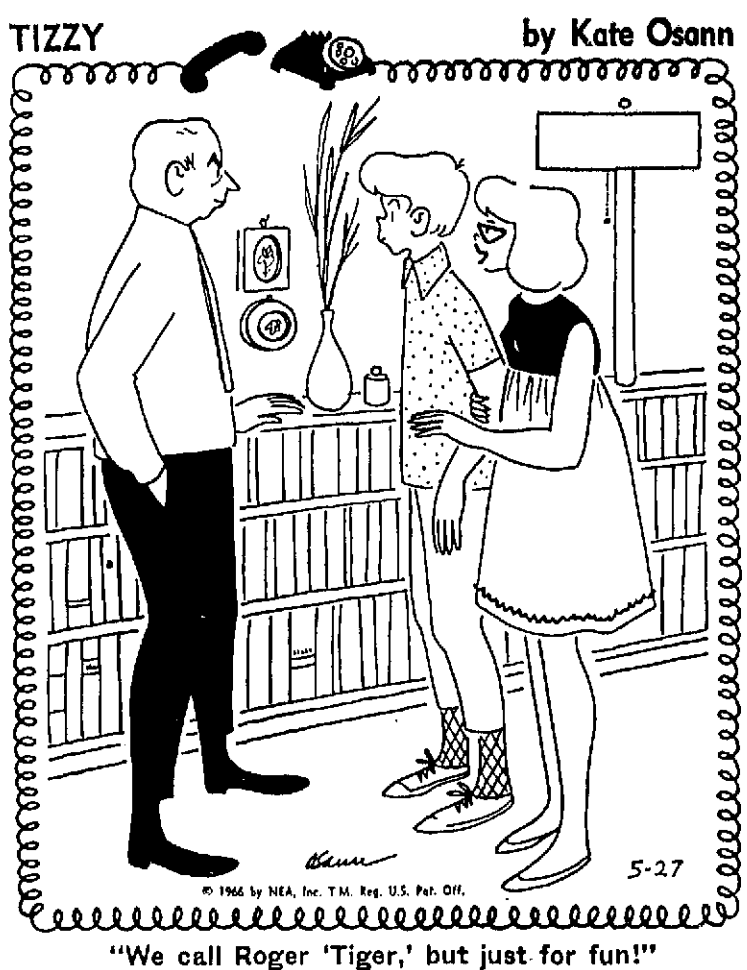

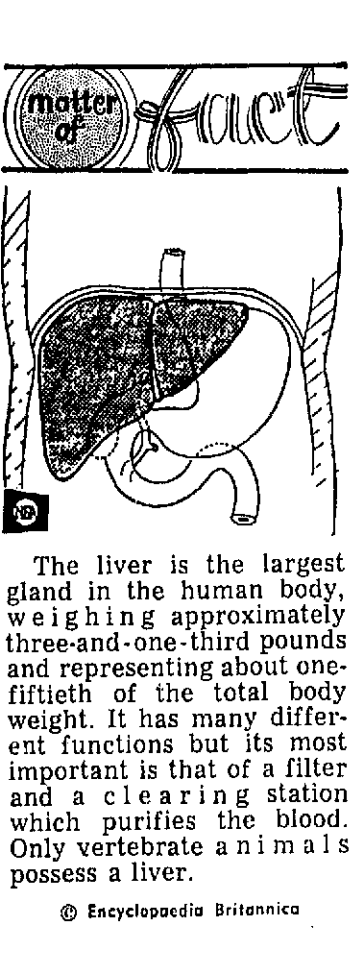

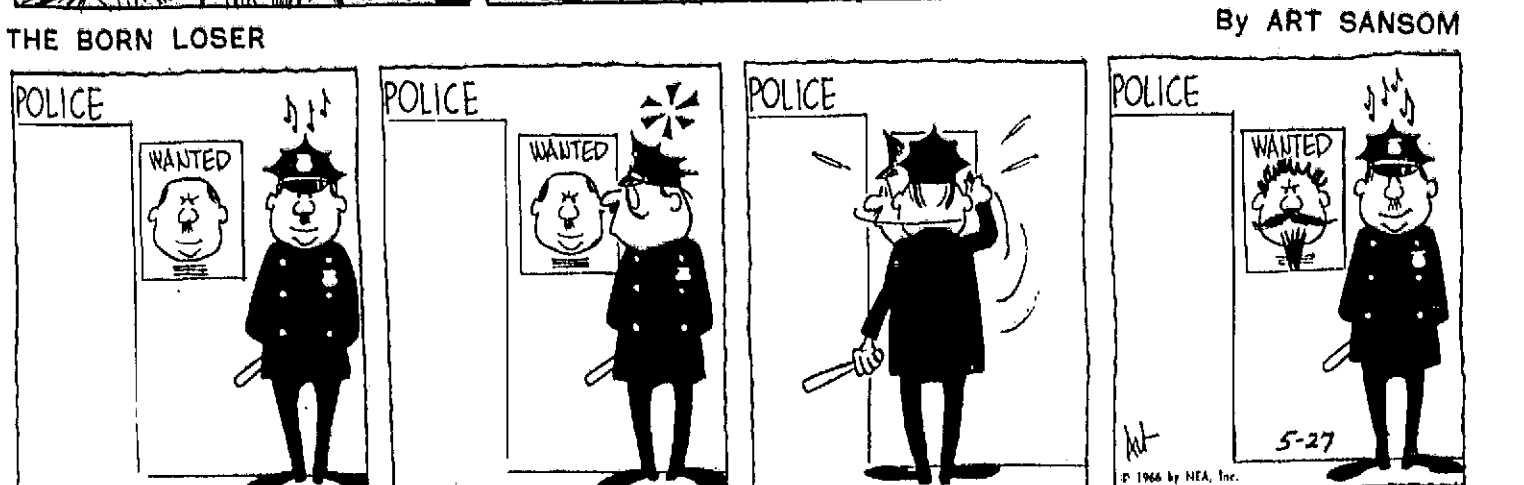

Lincoln's First Letter

Abraham Lincoln was nine years old when he penned his first letter in 1818. In it he asked a circuit-riding preacher to officiate at his mother's funeral.

In a recent duplicate game every South pair played some contract in hearts. Most of them were in game. The hand could be described as a lay-down in that it should be made, but about half the declarers overlooked the winning line of play.

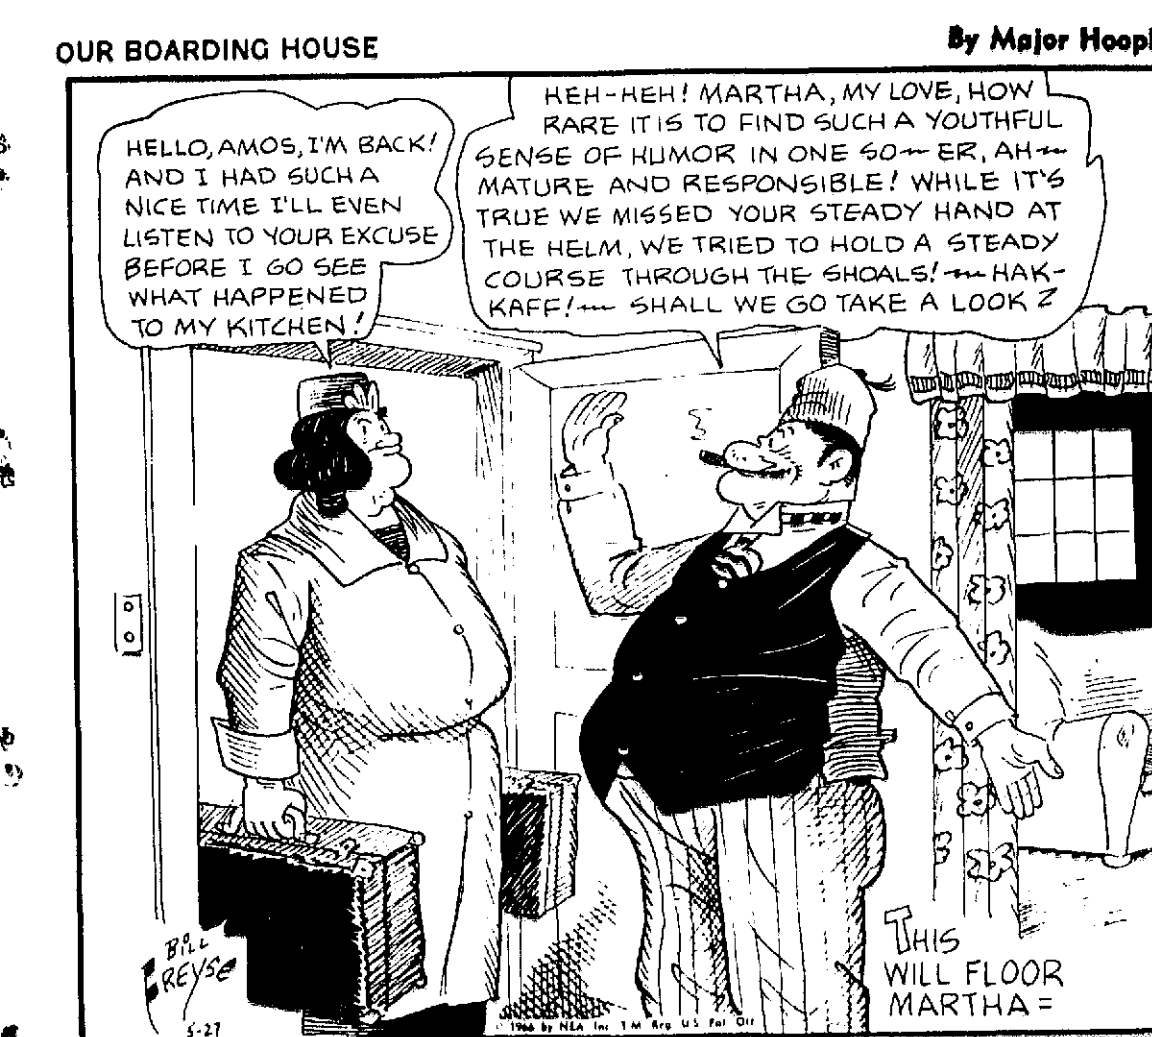

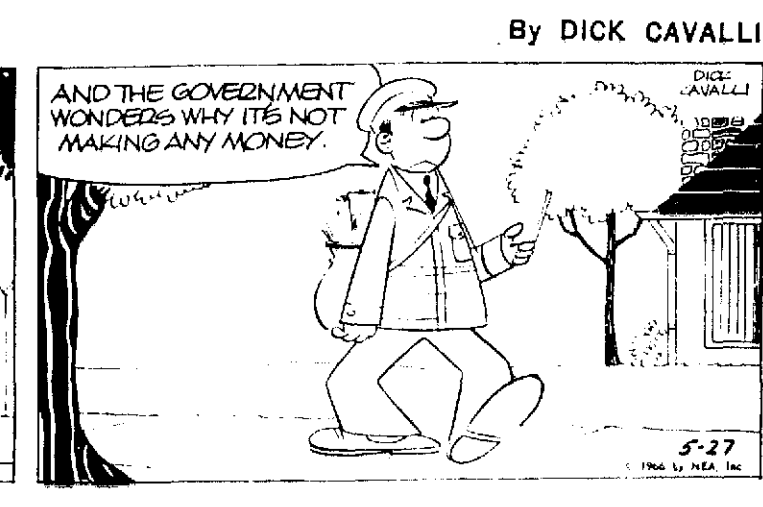

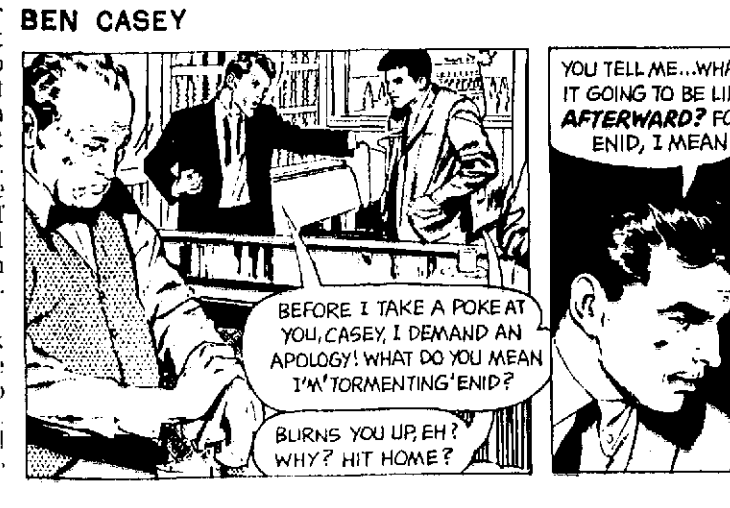

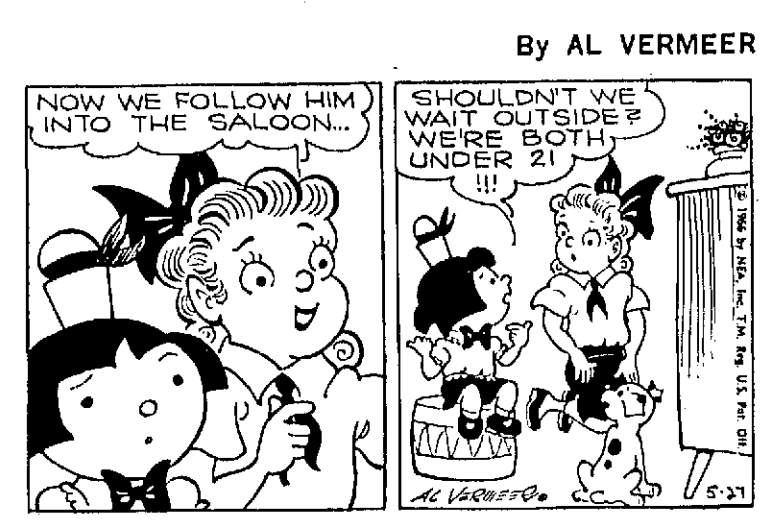

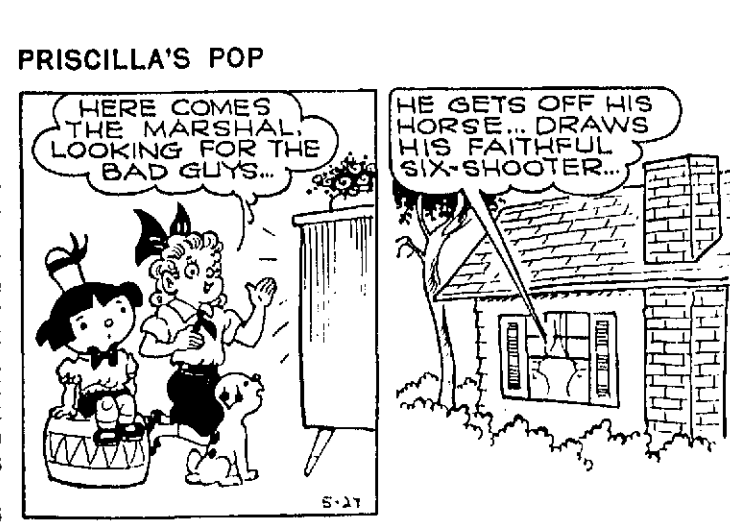

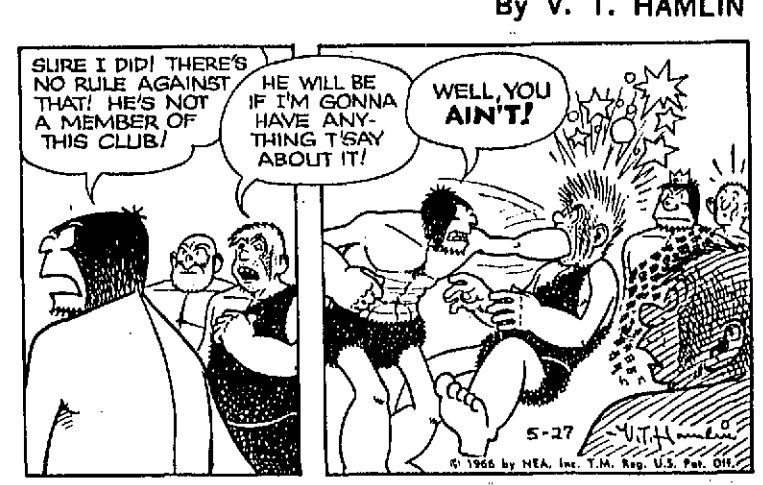

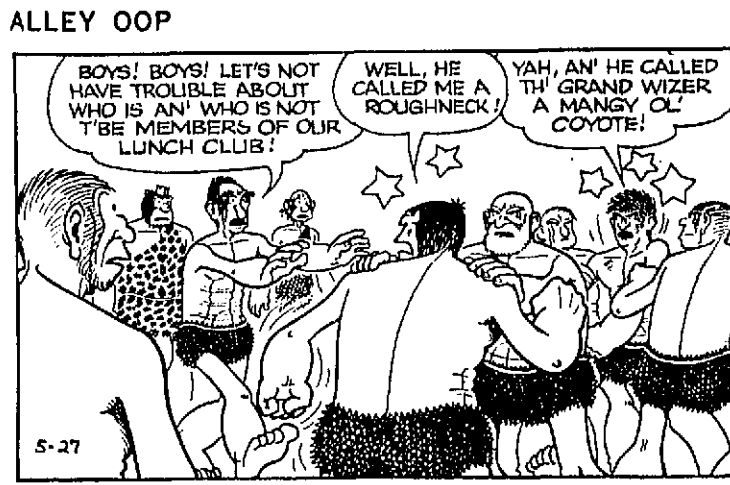

South ruffs the second diamond and can count 10 potential winners. Five trumps, four clubs and a spade. The difficulty lies in the fact that South cannot afford to draw trumps until after he establishes all his side suit winners.

Those declarers who drew trumps never got to make their spade trick. When they cleared the club suit, West got a chance to lead a third diamond and knock out South's last trump so that East could take the last two tricks with his ace of spades and a diamond.

The winning line of play is to take one round of trumps only. Then you establish your black suit tricks. It does not matter too much how you go after them but the play best calculated to save you from serious trouble if clubs don't break is to lead a spade first. East will win with the ace and lead a diamond. You ruff and play a low club. It won't make any difference which opponent wins because no return can hurt you. If a diamond is led back you ruff in dummy. A spade will be won in dummy, a club or trump in your own hand. In any event you win, pull trumps and go home with the rest of the tricks.

If the Politicians
Made a Western . . .

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)
FOOTLOOSE AND FANCY FREEWAY—

Among the candidates for the Republican nomination for congressman from my district—the 28th—is Wendell Corey. He's the actor, and a fine one, now shooting "Red Tomahawk" at Paramount. "I shouldn't have taken this part," he says, "because it cuts into my campaigning time."

Corey's dual interests—acting and politics—have prompted a game, he invented. You make believe you are casting a western with well-known political figures.

For the hero, Corey would choose from either Gerald Ford, Ted Kennedy or John Lindsay.

The card sharps in the saloon scene—Bobby Kennedy and Barry Goldwater.

The hired gun—Dick Nixon.

The saloon girl—Margaret Chase Smith.

The owner of the general store—Hubert Humphrey.

The owner of the saloon, who doubles as bartender—President Johnson.

Corey may be a Republican, but his game is nonpartisan.

Speaking of games, I invented one some years ago. I call it "Occupational Diseases" and you try to figure out a gag disease for specific occupations.

Counterfeiters would get new-moneyia and magicians would get trickynosis, for example.

Anyhow, I told disc jockey Gary Owens about it and he began playing it on the air and now it's all over southern California. Everybody is sending in lists of occupational diseases.

Among the contributions, my favorite is the disease which would strike members of a group of Irish hoodlums—gang-green.

Four Star has assigned Jay Simms, one of the top television writers (The Man from U.N.C.L.E., The Big Valley, The Rifleman, etc.), to develop the pilot film for Kevin the Bold, which is being adopted from the popular NEA comic strip.

We've had all kinds of stand-ins, but this is something special. For a scene in "How to Succeed," Maureen Arthur was supposed to walk away, with the camera catching a big close-up of her wiggle. Only problem was she didn't wiggle well enough to suit director David Swift. So they used—well, would you call it a sit-in?

Bobby Morse, here for "How to Succeed," has rented Gordon Macrae's house, but he and Carol are looking to buy here and settle in California permanently. . . . Vikki Carr made such a big hit with the sailors on the Kitty Hawk on her Viet Nam tour that they have nicknamed the ship the "Kitty Carr" in her honor—or so she says. . . . Between 80 and 85 per cent of all television sets in England are rented. The English pay the equivalent of $1 a week and that includes service.

Bootlegging in the record business is becoming a big problem. John Gary is now suing nine people for a quarter of a million for putting out bootleg records—they just put out copies of his records with new labels and new jackets and make a killing.

Gary says he met one of the defendants in the lawyer's office and they had a nasty session, while they gave their depositions. On the way out, the man, a song plugger, said, "Hey, Johnny, I've got a great song for you." Sic Semper Opportunists.

Businessmen
Battle the Worry Furrow

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Behind the doors of their executive washrooms many big businessmen today are waging secret wars against jowl drag, eye-bags, worry furrows and outward ravages of hangover.

In small jars, gleaming with gold ornamentation for status impact, are formulas which will at least tone down tell-tale age lines in time for a man of importance to make his speech, a television appearance, or an appointment with a youth-conscious client.

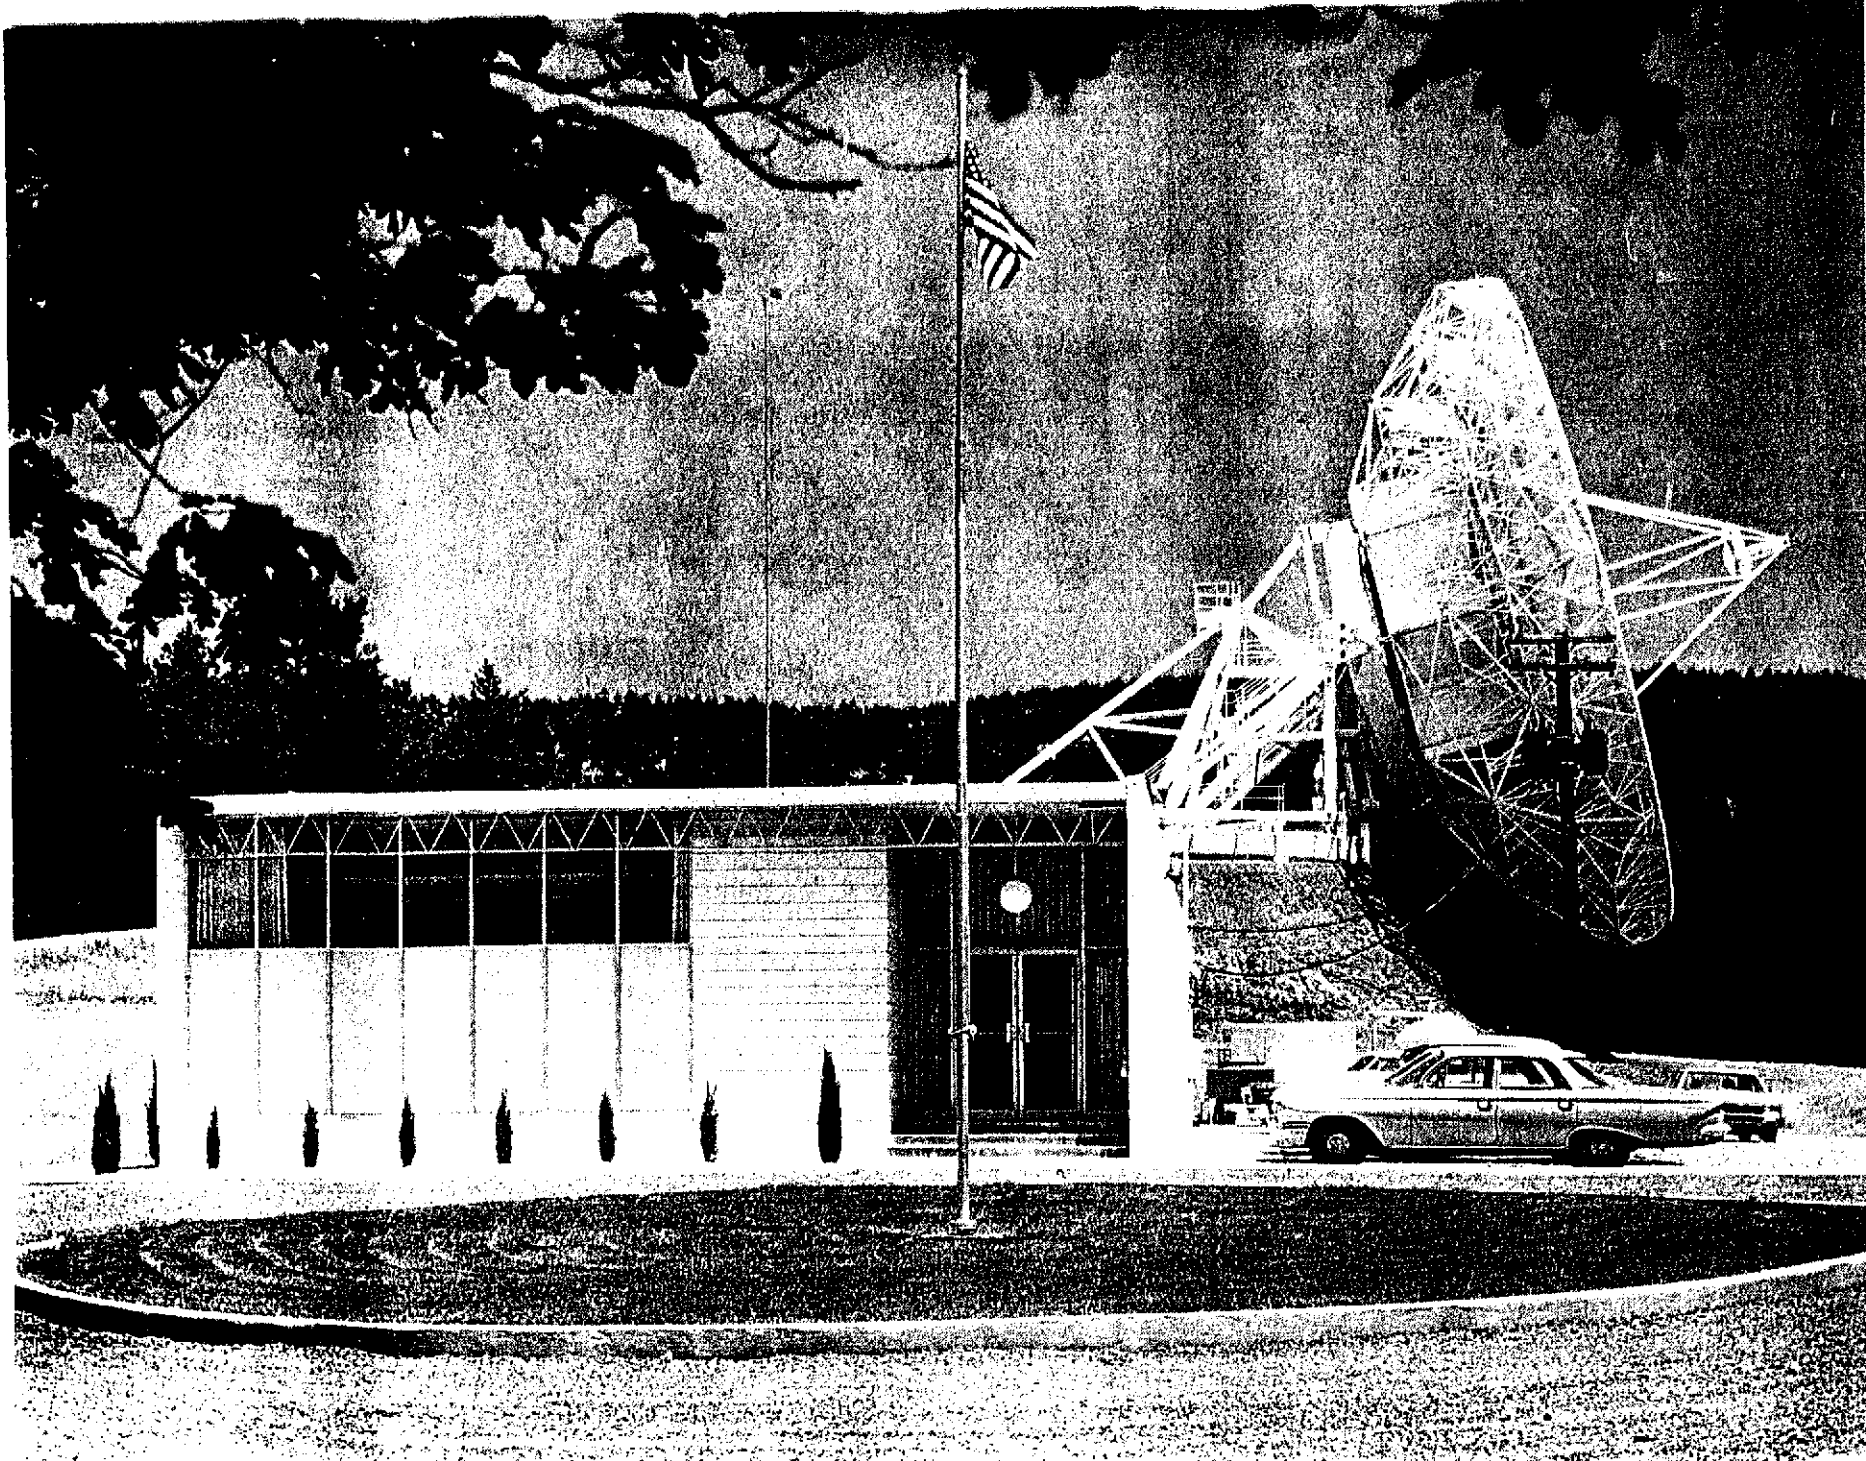

Two kinds of facial masks are selling strongly, say department store buyers here.

Satellite Station at Caddo Gap

EARTH STATION — Inaugural ceremonies heralding the first privately-owned communications satellite research station will be held May 30 at Caddo Gap, Ark. where Hughes Aircraft Company has established a site for developing and testing new satellite communications systems. Highlight of the inauguration will be disclosure of a new multiple access communications concept, developed jointly with Nippon Electric Co. of Tokyo, Japan, which permits many satellite earth stations to communicate simultaneously with one another via a single satellite. The station, shown here, occupies a 328 acre site in the Ouachita mountains, 45 miles southwest of Hot Springs.

Altogether there now are more than 303 different fragrances sold either as colognes or after-shave lotions usually with lusty names inspired by the rugged outdoors or the sea.

Today the super-immaculate man can begin his morning ablutions with a bath friction that has the tingling effect of a sauna; shampoo his locks with a soap on a rope; apply bathpowder with his brass knuckles puff; shave over a translucent foam that lets him see where the most bristles are; then proceed to astringents, protective creams, deodorants, nongreasy hair oils, hand creams, and colognes. He can hold up the bathroom even longer than a woman.

Though youth pioneered as toiletries customers, the older man in ever-growing competition with youth in business and romance is unabashedly shoving his way to the front of cosmetics counter.

Special lures for him are blemish mark-outs which, when applied subtly, lighten dark circles; as well as those soothing eye pads; and five to 10-minute face masks which, like a transparent coating of egg whites lifts sagging face muscles and sagging morale.

"My customers are smart men. They hold top jobs and plan to hang onto them," a merchandise manager said of his facial mask customers. "He knows he can replace his Brooks Brothers suit any day but not his face."

Johnson's Ideal Didn't
Last Long

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — For President Johnson the ideal situation would have been to years to concentrate on his favorite field, the one he knows best: getting what he wanted through Congress.

The ideal didn't last long. The Vietnamese war got in the way. And Johnson could give only part of his attention to Congress.

This in this 396-page con-

hope public appreciation for what has been done at home will outweigh any public dismay or confusion about the war.

Under his guidance and prodding in 1965 Congress did a sensational legislative job, particularly in the welfare field. Four years of that would have been unmatched in American history. But the war diverted both Johnson and Congress. And what it does this year will be no match for 1965, which in turn makes Johnson himself look less like a magician.

So, if the war is frustrating the American people, it's doubly exasperating to Johnson.

He's a great believer in public opinion polls. They may have convinced him that war or no war the voters will show gratitude to the Democrats by keeping them in overwhelming control of Congress.

Such hope, of course, would have to be based on what he is known to believe: that less than 10 per cent of the people share the war views of such critics as Sens. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and Wayne Morse, D-Ore.

This explains, but only in part, why he hasn't felt it necessary — yet — to tangle head on with the persistent critics who help spread discontent about it.

But there's another very practical reason why Johnson doesn't go after critics like Fulbright and Morse, although he has made cracks about them: they're members of Congress and he's a politician.

"They can be helpful to him on legislation not related to the war. And they have been."

But, just because he is a politician and a realistic one, Johnson can hardly have any illusions about the memory and appreciation of a voting public which so often has had a simple, pragmatic philosophy:

"What have you done for me lately?"

Johnson saw an example of it in the case of Harry S. Truman.

In 1946 the voters threw Truman's Democrats out of control of Congress and gave it to the Republicans. And when Truman himself ran for the presidency in 1948 he barely made it over Thomas E. Dewey.

Then, after four historic Truman years, there was so much discontent over the Korean War and confusion over McCarthyism that the voters put the Republicans in charge of the White House and Congress.

Then they did a fantastic switch. Highly pleased with Dwight D. Eisenhower as president, they deprived him of a Republican Congress and for six of Eisenhower's eight White House years gave Congress to the Democrats.

This is enough to confuse anybody, including Johnson.

Water Supply Our No. 1 Stake in Millwood

Millwood reservoir becomes a reality next month when the U.S. Corps of Engineers closes the gates of the newly-completed dam and officially opens the facility to the public.

To Louisiana Millwood spells flood control, merely one of several dams holding back the tributaries which in past years have sent Red River over its banks.

To many local people Millwood means just another recreational area for fishing and water sports.

But the No. 1 economic asset in Millwood for Southwest Arkansas is its potential water supply.

And I think the greatest contribution this newspaper has ever made to its town and territory began the day this writer got on an airliner and went to Washington in the late 1950's to argue for inclusion in the project of municipal, industrial and agricultural water, at a public hearing before the Senate Rivers and Harbors Committee.

We were not one of the original promoters of Millwood dam. That caused us to step into the picture, take a membership in Red River Valley Association, and ultimately make an appearance in Washington, was the disturbing fact that the initial setup for Millwood provided for flood control and recreation only.

Just north of us we had a prime example of how such an oversight can cause public inconvenience and grief. The Narrows dam was authorized for flood control, electric power, and recreation — and when a water shortage developed at Nashville that community couldn't get a truckload of water, it had all been spoken for in terms of federal law.

I did not mean to let this happen with a larger reservoir at our very doorstep. It simply didn't make sense to build a dam to store up flood water in the spring and not provide for saving a specific part of it for local use in the summer and fall months when water is usually in short supply — sometimes critically so.

There had been no previous intervention on this score for Millwood, and one of the Senate committee members I knew well, Senator John L. McClellan, expressed surprise and cross-examined me. I had no public backing at the moment but assured the senator it would develop quickly enough.

It did, and the government changed the terms of Millwood's water rights to guarantee a one-foot level across the entire reservoir for municipal, industrial, and agricultural use.

No town or territory is going anywhere in the economic world of tomorrow without an almost unlimited water supply. Your newspaper has hammered away at this theme for nearly 40 years — and now Millwood assures us of a permanent supply with only a pipeline needed to put us in business.

There will be a pipeline, not only to Hope but to Magnolia and other landlocked towns. Revenue bonds without taxation will build a water line almost anywhere.

A water pipeline is tomorrow's No. 1 economic target for Hope and its territory.

Cities never should have been permitted in the first place to rob underground water reserves with bored wells, for this water should have been reserved by law for private citizens.

The cities should have been compelled from the beginning to develop surface water reserves, for they have the financial reserves and political influence to manage construction of dams and reservoirs on rivers and creeks — a job that is beyond the power of individuals.

This also has been your newspaper's theme for 40 years — and you can bet we'll keep at it until the job is done.

$1.60 an Hour Wage Bill Is Voted in House

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has given overwhelming approval to a bill that would increase the minimum wage to $1.60 an hour by 1969 and cover another 7.2 million workers. The measure goes now to the Senate where supporters predict it may be expanded further.

The 303-93 House vote Thursday sending the bill to the Senate marked a substantial victory for President Johnson and the AFL-CIO, which hasn't fared too well this year with its other legislative proposals.

In the Senate, the bill's supporters said today they hope to get Labor Committee approval next month. The committee completed its public hearings on the legislation last year.

Supporters said they were confident the Senate would pass a bill fully as broad as the House version and perhaps even extend the coverage to a few more groups of employees.

Senate action is complicated by a vacancy in the chairmanship of the Labor subcommittee which must handle the bill. The post was held by the late Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, D-Mich.

Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., is expected to be named as soon to fill the vacancy.

The bill's managers lost one round in the House Thursday but there were indications this helped consolidate support for the measure.

In this skirmish, the House voted 205 to 193 to delay one year the second step increase taking the wage floor to $1.60. The new date will be Feb. 1, 1969. The provision boosting the present $1.25 an hour figure to $1.40 next Feb. 1 was left undisturbed.

AFL-CIO leaders said they would try to get the Senate to return to the 1968 date for the $1.60 minimum.

The bill's backers said they consider the coverage provisions of the measure to be more important in many respects than the wage boost since most workers now covered already receive more than $1.60.

Coverage would be extended for the first time to employees of farms, laundries, hotels, motels, restaurants, hospitals transit systems, canneries, logging firms, cotton ginning firms and the federal government.

On Wednesday the House voted tentatively to eliminate proposed coverage of 1.6 million employees of small stores and businesses.

But, on a 200-195 roll call vote Thursday, administration forces succeeded in restoring this provision.

The 485,000 farm workers who would be brought under the act are employed in relatively large-scale operations. It is estimated a farm would have to use about seven full-time employees to be covered.

The covered farm workers would start at $1 an hour next Feb. 1 and receive two annual 15-cent raises to $1.30 by 1969. Other employees covered for the first time also would begin at $1 in 1967, but would receive four annual 15-cent boosts to $1.60 by 1971.

The measure would bring to 36.8 million the number of workers covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act.

'Evolution' Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The teacher who filed suit challenging the state's so-called monkey law, Mrs. Susan M. Epperson, has resigned as a biology teacher at Little Rock Central High School.

The Little Rock School Board approved her resignation and others Thursday. The board agenda gave as her reason, "Moving to Missouri."

Her husband is Lt. Jon O. Epperson of the Little Rock Air Force Base.

Mrs. Epperson's suit challenges the constitutionality of a state law forbidding the teaching of the theory of evolution. The case is pending.

Challenge to Election Law
Under Study

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chancellor Murray Reed took under advisement Thursday a suit challenging the constitutionality of five state election laws and questioning the appointment of county election commissioners.

The suit was brought by the Republican Party.

Reed said the case appeared to be solely a question of law, and that it would be decided on briefs submitted by the opposing attorneys.

He gave Thomas Eisele, the GOP attorney, until June 3 to file his brief and gave the attorney general's office until June 17 to file a reply.

Eisele said the most important points in the suit were those challenging Act 477 of 1963 and Act 56 of 1965.

Act 477 states that where there are no known Republicans in a county the GOP member of the county election commission can appoint no election judges and clerks.

Act 56 prohibits a person who voted in one party's primary from serving as the other party's judge or clerk in the general election.

Nevada County Sheriff Horace Hale and Deputy J. H. Dillard along with state and federal ABC officers made the raid.

Little Chance Probers Can Quiz Sturgis

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Legislative Audit Committee started an investigation of illegal Highway Department raises Friday with no hope of questioning the man who probably knows most about them.

Former Highway Director Mack Sturgis, who approved on April 1, declined to appear before the committee for health reasons. He suffered a heart attack last year.

Sturgis submitted, instead, a lengthy statement on his role in the controversial affair. The statement was to be read by Rep. Sterling Cockrill Jr., the committee chairman.

The pay raises, totaling $2.1 million a year, stirred a furor when newsmen learned by an anonymous letter that they had been granted without notification to the Highway Commission.

The hearing was recessed here Thursday after more than 3½ hours of testimony by six witnesses.

The accused firms — Arkansas Valley Industries, Inc., of Little Rock; Ralston-Purina Co. of St. Louis; and Tyson's Foods, Inc. of Springdale — were charged with blacklisting certain broiler growers in the Wadron area.

These growers testified earlier that they had been blacklisted because of their activities in the Northwest (Arkansas) Poultry Growers Association.

AVI contended they did not renew grow-out contracts with the firms because the costs of the growers was above the firms' average and therefore it was not profitable.

Congress Is Easing Up on War Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said today Congress is showing its "sense of responsibility" by easing up on the Viet Nam debate.

Congressmen realize the difficulty of the political situation in Viet Nam, the vice president said in an interview, and that is one reason discussions of the turmoil and confusion there have been relatively calm in contrast to the fury that broke out in the Senate over the issues of escalation and bombing.

This is because the political issues are much more troublesome to debate than the military, Humphrey said.

Humphrey noted, "I would imagine everything that can be said has been said on both sides."

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, the senior Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee which was the focus of the war debate, has another interpretation for the relative calm:

"It may be the people who were making the most noise have run out of steam."

"I'm just speculating," he added in an interview, "but it's certainly possible a lot of people who have been so loud in their criticism may be wondering whether they have given stimulus to some of these uprisings in Viet Nam."

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, a persistent critic of administration policy, observed he hasn't changed his opinions despite a lull in his public attacks.

But, he said, "those who are defending our course may find there is little to say. The mess down there certainly has kept the hawks from saying anything; the doves can feel the facts speak for themselves. It now is so obvious a mess."

Director of Anti-Poverty Program in Phillips Fed Up With Big Brother, Quits

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — Bill Munden, director of the anti-poverty program in Phillips County, resigned Thursday with a critical blast at the federal Office of Economic Opportunity.

"I've had it with 'Big Brother OEO,'" Munden declared, saying that there was not enough money in the federal treasury to compensate an anti-poverty director for the abuses he was expected to contend with.

The resignation, effective June 15, stemmed from refusal of the regional OEO office in Austin, Tex., to approve an Operation Headstart kindergarten program at Marvell because it is scheduled to be held in a Negro school.

He said Thomas Mata Jr., an OEO analyst, had demanded changes in the Marvell program that would "render the move local prerogatives."

"I think it is vital that some community action program director point out to the public, the Congress and the OEO officials that the community action program is not a local program," Munden said.

The OEO also is holding up Headstart programs at Marion and Turrell because they are scheduled in Negro schools.

Mata said that white parents are reluctant to take their children to Negro schools.

90 Per Cent Sign
With Medicare

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Social Security Administration said Thursday that 90 per cent of eligible Arkansians aged 65 or over had signed up for medical insurance available under the medicare program.

Herbert R. Louks, district manager for the administration, said 195,000 persons signed up, 13,000 rejected the coverage and 8,000 had not made a formal decision.

The insurance costs $3 a month and helps pay doctor's bill which are not covered under the basic medicare program. The state is paying the $2 premium for persons on the welfare rolls.

Rebel Leader in Secret Meet With Gen. Ky

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese marines hurling tear gas grenades and firing bursts from automatic weapons broke up a howling mob of antigovernment Buddhists demonstrators here tonight after Buddhist leaders rejected a peace feeler from premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

Earlier in the day, Ky and his archrival in the north, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chan Thi, met secretly under U.S. auspices apparently to try to work out a settlement of their dispute.

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The leader of rebellious Vietnamese Army forces in Hue, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chan Thi, was flown under a U.S. guarantee of safety today to a secret meeting with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

Ky flew from Saigon to meet his bitter rival as U.S. planes evacuated 45 Americans and other foreign civilians from Hue and the Buddhist stronghold's progovernment mayor moved out of the city with 1,000 loyal troops to a fortified headquarters five miles southeast of Hue.

Ky and Thi, whom the premier had fired as commander of the army's 1st Corps on March 10, met at the U.S. 1st Marine Division's headquarters at Chu Lai, about 85 miles south of Hue.

Woman in Murder Case
Collapses

MARION, Ind. (AP) — Mrs. Edith Schmidt, 25, held here on a preliminary charge of murder in the dismemberment killing of her husband, collapsed in jail Thursday and was taken to a hospital for treatment.

A physician said she was suffering from "nervous exhaustion."

She was later returned to the jail, where she is awaiting a grand jury investigation of the death of Larry L. Schmidt, 30.

Also charged in the case is Glenn Stewart, 30, a Marion factory worker who surrendered in a swamp near Arkadelphia, Ark., Tuesday after a 12-hour manhunt.

Stewart has denied he had anything to do with the slaying of Schmidt, whose hacked body was found in a basement at Marion last Sunday.

Mrs. Schmidt allegedly told Marion Police Chief Ted Null that she and Stewart were lovers and plotted her husband's death together.

Her court-appointed attorney, Patrick N. Ryan, said Thursday, however, that Mrs. Schmidt was subjected to harsh treatment by Marion police because she is a former mental patient.

He said he would not let her testify before the grand jury. Ryan said Mrs. Schmidt had been committed to the Richmond, Ind., State Hospital for a month last year by her late husband.

Stewart, meanwhile, has not decided whether to waive extradition and return to face the murder charge in Indiana, Sheriff R. W. Stevenson said Thursday.

Stevenson said he believes it will be next week before Stewart makes the decision.

Stewart is recovering from a slight case of pneumonia, contracted while he was hiding out in the swamp country south of Arkadelphia, the sheriff said.

Hays Going to

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Too few Arkansas women occupy key positions in state government and private industry, Brooks Hays told a women's service club here Wednesday.

If he is elected governor, he will appoint women to state boards and commissions and consider them for a salaried administrative positions, he said.

Hays, one of eight Democrats seeking the governorship, said he would make the Governor's Commission on Status of Women a permanent body.
